News

House Judiciary Democrats release 50-page report on Trump's alleged involvement in Epstein files

The report — issued just eight days before the election — makes multiple, uncorroborated allegations against the president while also detailing discrepancies in his statements about Epstein.

President Donald Trump arrives for the United Nations General Assembly at U.N. Headquarters on Sept. 22, 2026, in New York City. Alexi J. Rosenfeld / Getty Images

By Lisa Rubin
Oct. 26, 2026, 5:00 AM EDT

House Judiciary Committee Democrats on Monday released an unsigned staff report laying out what they call "the case against Donald Trump emerging in the Epstein Files and DOJ's desperate efforts to cover it up," with those Democrats now calling for an independent special counsel to investigate the president as well as what they describe as Attorney General Todd Blanche's conflicts of interest and the Justice Department's reluctance to share relevant evidence with state and foreign law enforcement.

"The women who survived Epstein deserve to be heard," the top Democrat on the House Judiciary Committee, Rep. Jamie Raskin, D-Md., said in a statement. "Congress must have the complete files required by law, and an independent special counsel must investigate Epstein's co-conspirators and DOJ's cover-up and ensure that state and foreign prosecutors have the evidence they need to pursue justice."

The more than 50-page report alleges that Trump was "an active participant in Jeffrey Epstein's abuse of young women in the mid-to-late 1990s." Although it also contains at least one entirely new allegation against the president, it provides no direct evidence other than the woman's own conversations with Judiciary Committee staff.

For years, Trump has denied that he engaged in any sexual misconduct with any woman connected to Jeffrey Epstein, and he has also said that he knew nothing about Epstein's crimes.

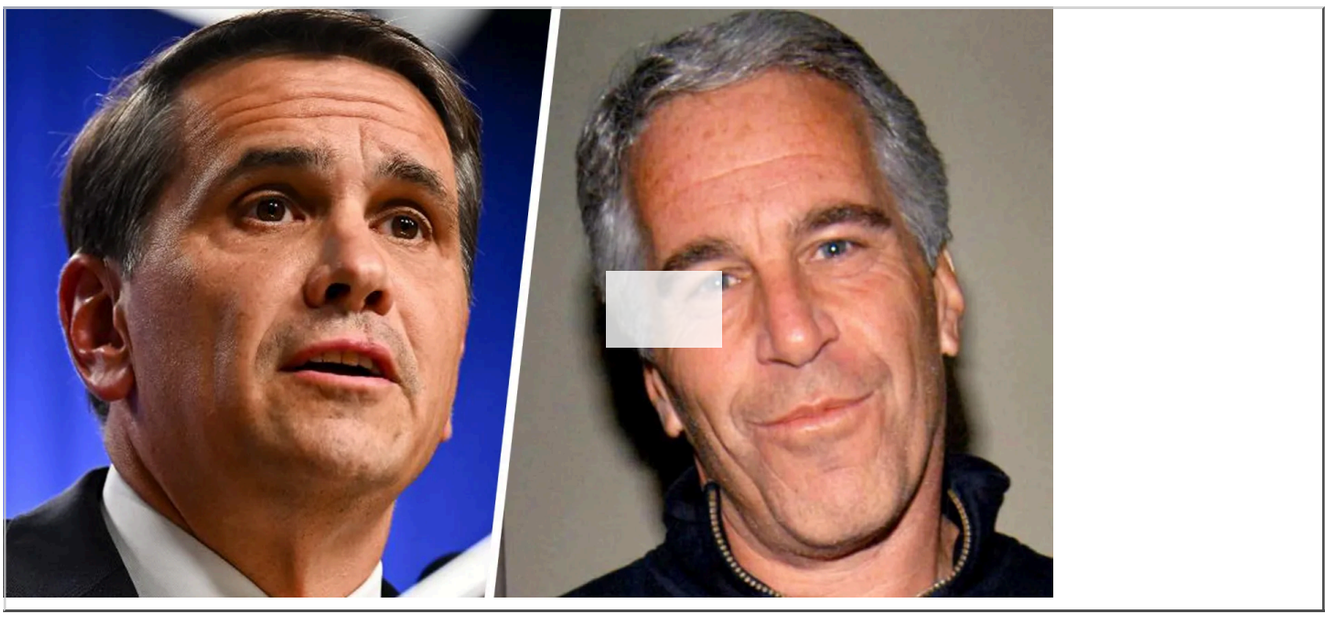

The report also repeats several other longstanding, unsubstantiated allegations against Trump.

A Democratic Judiciary Committee source told MS NOW the report draws on publicly available accounts as well as conversations with survivors. The source declined to provide additional details about those conversations, citing concerns for survivors' privacy. The source also declined to quantify how many survivor conversations they had.

Among the discrepancies highlighted in the report are inconsistencies with what Trump has said about his awareness of Epstein's crimes.

The report also suggests that DOJ officials, including the attorney general, are "doing everything they can to keep the American people in the dark" about Trump's alleged participation in Epstein's abuse of young women.

"Attorney General Blanche may have engaged in criminal obstruction of justice while acting on a mission to protect Trump," the report alleges.

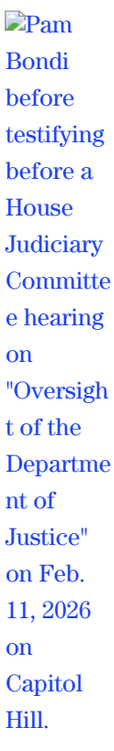

The report lays out how Blanche's meeting with Ghislaine Maxwell "potentially constituted witness tampering and obstruction of an official proceeding."

"Blanche's apparent instructions not to discuss a specific Epstein victim, and how that victim could implicate Donald Trump, could easily run afoul of 18 U.S.C. § 1512, which forbids hindering or delaying the communication of information relating to the potential commission of a federal offense to a law enforcement officer, as well as corruptly influencing the testimony of any person in an official proceeding — such as a congressional interview and investigation," Democrats write in the report.

More articles

Bondi to testify before House Oversight Committee after Democrats file contempt resolution

Clarissa-Jan Lim, Syedah Asghar

Pam Bondi before testifying before a House Judiciary Committee hearing on "Oversight of the Department of Justice" on Feb. 11, 2026 on Capitol Hill.

Ro Khanna calls for 'Epstein class' subcommittee to investigate possible co-conspirators

Allison Detzel

A Justice Department spokesperson said the report was "nothing more than a last-ditch effort by House Judiciary Democrats to mislead the public."

investigated by agents at the time," the spokesperson said.

"While we cannot talk about the existence of any ongoing investigations, the Trump Administration is the only administration to prosecute Jeffrey Epstein and Ghislaine Maxwell and make any of these documents available to the public," the spokesperson added.

In June, a federal judge found that Blanche had effectively conceded that DOJ was in violation of the Epstein Files Transparency Act by not producing certain unredacted and foreign language documents, among other issues. DOJ is appealing that ruling.

Blanche himself bristled at the suggestion that the Justice Department has withheld documents that should have been released, maintaining that DOJ "undertook a Herculean task to review millions and millions of potentially responsive files" and met their review and production obligations "expeditiously."

Lauren Bis, a White House spokesperson, told MS NOW, that "none of these allegations are true."

"This 'report' is nothing more than a desperate attempt by crazed Democrats to distract Americans from the surging Republican momentum driven by President Trump's historic achievements," Bis said. "The President kicked Jeffrey Epstein out of his club at Mar-a-Lago because he was a creep, and he has been fully exonerated of anything related to Epstein."

While only Democratic staff authored Monday's report, the House Judiciary Committee has not been the principal congressional committee investigating Epstein's sex trafficking crimes and whether others participated in or enabled his abuse.

The investigation from the House Oversight Committee has included interviews with a number of former Epstein employees, such as his lawyer Darren Indyke and his accountant Richard Kahn, as well as one of his survivors and alleged co-conspirators. That investigation principally focused on who else has directly participated in, as well as funded or otherwise enabled, Epstein's sex trafficking operation.

Lisa Rubin.

Lisa Rubin

Lisa Rubin is MS NOW's senior legal reporter and a former litigator.

Become a Member to join the conversation

Comments

Join the Conversation ›

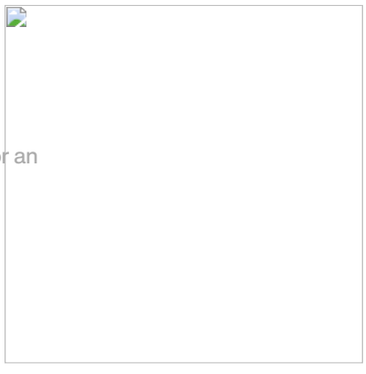

Upcoming Live Q&A

Morning Joe Family Meeting

Join Joe Scarborough and the Morning Joe family every Tuesday for an opportunity to speak with the hosts about what's on your mind.

Tomorrow 12:00 PM EDT

Become a Member

rights town hall in Jackson, Miss.

from the mid-torso up.

Rubio frames CIA as a global menace in online plea for Cuban turncoats

Ja'han Jones

Why a judge said the Trump immunity ruling doesn't justify Maurene Comey's firing

Jordan Rubin

On multiple fronts, the Trump administration faces accusations of data manipulation

Steve Benen

In Mississippi's Senate race, GOP targets Democratic candidate's ad

Ja'han Jones

Monday's Campaign Round-Up, 10.26.26: Fallout from Ramaswamy ad continues

Steve Benen

'A disgrace': Trump finds yet another Republican senator to condemn ahead of the midterms

Steve Benen

Hillary Clinton just shifted the Overton window on Supreme Court court packing

Paul Waldman

SCOTUS Week in Review: Back to school, home spirits and a rare decision

Jordan Rubin

Does presidential immunity extend to subordinates who carry out illegal orders?

Jordan Rubin

newsletter, featuring exclusive insights from hosts and experts, delivered biweekly

The Rachel Maddow Show

The best of Rachel, including video highlights and the latest from The MaddowBlog, delivered daily

The Blueprint with Jen Psaki

Jen Psaki chronicles the players, issues and movements shaping the future of the Democratic Party, delivered weekly

Meet the Team

Everything MS NOW, all together. Discover the shows everyone's talking about.

Explore | Explore | Explore | Explore

© 2026 Versant Media, LLC